The flagship red blend and eponymous 2019 Viña Urbezo is now organically certified, and the varietal mix has changed to Garnacha and Syrah (it used to also include Tempranillo, at times Merlot), and it's had a semi-carbonic maceration (in the past, it had a full carbonic maceration), as the Garnacha was carbonic but the Syrah was traditional. It has a floral and expressive nose, clean and fruit-driven, and the palate is soft and polished, with almost unnoticeable tannins, a very pleasant mouthfeel and clean, focused flavors. Delicious! 30,000 bottles produced. It was bottled in March 2020.
